The Inaugural Sydney International Workshop
on Synergies in Astronomy and Medicine

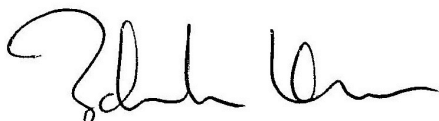

*The Inaugural Sydney International Workshop on Synergies in Astronomy and Medicine, Dec. 14-16,
University of Sydney*

Sponsorship and Exhibition Opportunities

AstroMed09 is an innovative, cross-disciplinary international workshop being hosted by the University of Sydney. It is aimed at identifying opportunities for diffusion of knowledge and technology transfer between astronomical and medical imaging. We invite your organisation to participate in this exciting event and offer you an opportunity to promote your company and products to a diverse audience of professional scientists and engineers. By making a commitment to sponsor AstroMed09, your organisation will attract the following benefits:

- Dedicated exhibition space and resources during the event.
- Access to delegates for valuable discussion and professional networking.
- Demonstration of your support for leading-edge scientific research.
- Strengthen your association with the University of Sydney.

The scientific program of AstroMed09 is designed to highlight the many similar demands in medical and astronomical imaging for increasingly sophisticated and diverse techniques (e.g. reconstruction, registration, fusion algorithms) as well as associated instrumentation technologies and advanced software tools for multi-dimensional data storage, manipulation and processing. This presents unique opportunities for cross-fertilisation and novel R&D initiatives with substantial commercial potential. We hope you can join us in this exciting event!
