POLICY ON PARKING ON CAMPERDOWN & DARLINGTON CAMPUSES

The introduction of the SEINS system and the Pay-and-Display machines have implications for the way in which vehicle-using visitors to the Camperdown and Darlington campuses are admitted and the conditions under which they are admitted.

Accordingly, the Vice-Chancellor has approved the following policy:

Parking for activities that are organised by faculties, departments, administrative units, centres and the like will be treated as follows:

(A) Where the function is not a specific fund-raising activity, those attending will not be permitted to park free of charge unless the function organisers elect to make a pre-payment of the estimated parking charges, and arrangements are made for this with the Traffic Office.

(B) Where a faculty, department, administrative unit, centre or the like wishes to issue parking vouchers to visitors, these are obtainable through the Traffic Office at a cost to that unit. One day parking vouchers available through the Main Office will be charged to the relevant department. One day parking vouchers will only be issued upon provision of an account code.

(C) Where a particular person of importance is to visit the campus, the procedure for notifying the Traffic Office and of securing a "day entry number" is available. In this case, the vehicle registration details must be submitted to the Traffic Office in advance and the visitor will need to acquire a parking voucher, at no cost, on entry to the campus. (Main entrance or City Road)

Voluntary workers, potential benefactors and unpaid visitors on University business are also eligible for free parking under the "day entry number" system.

- Please note that visitors to University of Sydney from Macquarie University or University of NSW are required to organise parking permits themselves through Security Services at their own University.
- Parking vouchers will not be issued to University of Sydney employees.

It is a condition of entry that all visitors admitted to the campuses comply with the parking regulations and observe the requirement to "Park in Marked Bays" only.
